

Data types

- * classification or categorization of data items
- * Represents the kind of value that tells what operations can be performed on a particular data.
- * Data types are actually classes in python & variables are instance (object) of these classes.

Data types in python

